About ICIEBP

Islamic perspective as a new and emergent pattern has demonstrated an unprecedented performance in terms of transforming the Muslim societies and beyond. We have witnessed the emergence of various Islamic perspective in different practices. There is a need for a macro-shift in our worldviews; a re-thinking of the fundamentals of the western economic model to ensure a humanistic and sustainable model that resonate with culture and ensures balance (mizan), social equity (adl) and respects harmony between nature, people and markets. Above all, what is needed is a new and fresh look at Islam as a source of both inspiration and restoration of the natural state of humans as referred to in Islam as fitra.

The following is a brief outline on how Islam looks at the three pillars of sustainability (environment, social and economics). The high cost and irreversible environmental costs of the market-based economic model is evident. It is argued that markets do not tell us the ecological truth and that climate change and global financial crises issues are evidence of the market failure. Re-defining the basic notion "what constitutes a good life" and how to pursue happiness are critical in understanding sustainability from an Islamic perspective. The Islamic dream is not linked to accumulation of wealth and living in luxury but rather on conserving the human, social and natural capitals which are considered as necessities.

The 1st INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ISLAMIC ECONOMICS, BUSINESS AND PHILANTHROPY (ICIEBP)

NOVEMBER 15th, 2017
BANDUNG-WEST JAVA, INDONESIA

Introduction

Department of Islamic Economics and Finance, Faculty of Economics and Business Education, Universitas Pendidikan Indonesia (UPI) collaboration with Department of Islamic Economics Faculty of Economic and Business Universitas Airlangga (UNAIR), Indonesia Magnificent Zakat (IMZ) and Center for Islamic Philanthropy and Social Finance UITM Melaka Malaysia, proudly presents "The 1st International Conference on Islamic Economics, Business, and Philanthropy (ICIEBP)" that will be held on November 15th, 2017 in Bandung, Indonesia. The theme, as well as the main objective, of the conference is "Transforming Islamic Economy and Societies".

Islamic perspective as a new and emergent pattern has demonstrated an unprecedented performance in terms of transforming the Muslim societies and beyond. We have witnessed the emergence of various Islamic perspective in different practices. There is a need for a macro-shift in our worldviews; a re-thinking of the fundamentals of the western economic model to ensure a humanistic and sustainable model that resonate with culture and ensures balance (mizan), social equity (adl) and respects harmony between nature, people and markets. Above all, what is needed is a new and fresh look at Islam as a source of both inspiration and restoration of the natural state of humans as referred to in Islam as fitra.

The following is a brief outline on how Islam looks at the three pillars of sustainability (environment, social and economics). The high cost and irreversible environmental costs of the market-based economic model is evident. It is argued that markets do not tell us the ecological truth and that climate change and global financial crises issues are evidence of the market failure. Re-defining the basic notion "what constitutes a good life" and how to pursue happiness are critical in understanding sustainability from an Islamic perspective. The Islamic dream is not linked to accumulation of wealth and living in luxury but rather on conserving the human, social and natural capitals which are considered as necessities.
